How To Plan an Event

Get Started Planning Your Event!

Any event takes planning, but with the help of a few friends, a little hard work create a very successful event.

First off, a number of questions must be answered. What is the vision and purpose behind the event. What are some ways you can accomplish your goal? When is the best time to hold this event? How many people do you want to have attend? Where can you accommodate the number of people at the time you want to hold the event? How much money will the event cost? How much money is available, and from where will it come? These are all questions which must be answered, but by taking them one step at a time, an effective successful event can be planned. Consider these steps to give you a framework to help plan your event:

1. Come up with an idea, vision, or set of goals for the event.
2. Determine what is necessary to implement the vision and create a budget.
3. Contact your school's administration and inquire about possible venues and available dates for the event. Make the reservations for the proper facilities to put on the event.
4. Identify possible sources of funding and begin to request money for the event.
5. Reserve the proper resources, equipment, and personnel necessary for the event.
(steps 3, 4, and 5 should happen at about the same time)
6. Publicize the event.
7. Host the event.
8. Follow-up from the event.

Picking an event location and date.

Campuses usually make their facilities available for student groups to use for events.

Auditoriums and classrooms are a great place to bring a speaker, or host workshops, while theaters are better for videos or movies. Depending on the nature of your event, you might want to even look into using outdoor facilities.

School nights are usually the best times to host big events on campus as people are already on campus. (Plus people typically aren't interested in attending these sorts of events on weekends.) Somewhere in the middle of the term is the best time of the year to plan events, as people won't be studying as hard for tests and you'll have plenty of time for publicizing your event. Try avoid times of the year when many people are taking tests, such as close to finals week. Also, try to avoid the very beginning of academic terms, as you will need at least a couple of weeks to publicize the event. (Similarly, Mondays also aren't a great day, because it only gives one day of the week of the event for publicity).

As zany as this may sound, through experience, we have found that it is best to plan events on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, or Thursdays somewhere in the middle of academic terms. Of course events don't have to take place at these times, these are just our general suggestions.
